

What is Forest to Tap?

F2T is a project to share the knowledge that forests and good forest management contribute greatly to the clean waters of Minnesota, and thus great beer.

The Forest Friendly Brewery Project (“Forest to Tap” and "F2T"), is a non-profit based project, planned and supported by a diverse group of natural resource interests, whose common denominator is the knowledge that good forest management – including planting, harvesting, and stewardship - results in clean and healthy water for wildlife, communities, businesses – and ultimately for beer! The project is focused on providing information about how good forest management practices provide clean water. The ‘avenue’ to that education is through partnering with craft breweries, (the end users of water), to spread the message.
